

Polina Kopylova: Bibliography

Novels

Letopisi Sviatyh Zemel [The Sacred Lands' Annals]. St. Petersburg: Azbooka Publishing, 1997.

Short Fiction

*Virago*¹. Moscow: Manufakatura Publishing, 2001.

Sviataya, Chuzhaya, Suzhenaya [The Saint, The Alien, The Bride]. Moscow: Zvesdnaja Doroga Magazine, 2003.

ROMA IV 2. Helsinki: 2004.

Inye breraga literary almanac of the Russian-speaking literators' union in Finland

Bessmertny [The Immortal]. Moscow: Deti Ra Magazine.

Arsen 3. St. Petersburg: Zvesda Magazine, 2006.

Poetry

Poldvenadtsatogo [Half An Hour Before Midnight]. St. Petersburg: Hodov Publishing, 2004.

Journal Articles

Hor Chuzhdyh Kontekstov [The Alien Contexts' Chorus]. Moscow.
Novoye literaturnoye obozrenie literary magazine

All the publications, except the one listed first, occurred in almanacs and literary magazines.

¹ The word "virago" coming from Renaissance Italy describes the virgin possessing male virtues.

² The name of the novel refers both to the naming of videogames and TV-series, when newer versions or sequels are named same way with just adding a number. Here is also joking about the Orthodox religious formula "Moscow be the Third Rome".

³ This is a name of a main character.